DOUGLASS GETS HIS FREEDOM

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Secure Release of Man Found in Hotel Gettysburg. Warden Hears of his Arrest.

On Wednesday afternoon Arthur Douglass was discharged from the custody of Sheriff Fissel following a habeas corpus hearing held before Judge Swope. The proceeding was brought at the instance of Douglass' attorney,
J. Donald Swope, Esq.

Douglass was arrested Tuesday
March 14 on a charge brought by Dr.
C. E. Treibly of the Hotel Gettysburg who said that he had found the man at night in the kitchen of the hotel.
Douglass, who is more generally known as "Yellow," explained his presence there by saying that he had been asked by the night watchman, Leonard Ricketts, to help him clean up and he was there for that purpose. The watchman admitted that he had made the request claimed. Douglass was held for Court, however, and had been in Sheriff Fissel's care until Wednesday's hearing.

At the time of the arrest Douglass insisted that he would not make an attempt to escape if allowed to go on his own recognizance for appearance at Court as he is on parole from a sentence under the new indeterminate sentence act at the Eastern Penitentiary and he wished to keep up good behavior.

On Wednesday afternoon immediately after the hearing Sheriff Fissel received a telegram from the warden of the institution who stated that he had heard that Douglass had broken his parole and that the Sheriff should return him to the penitentiary. The Court instructed Sheriff Fissel to wire the warden of the penitentiary that Douglass had just been discharged on the charge for which he had been arrested. The parole so far as the recent trouble is concerned has not, therefore, been broken.

of 1909-10. The work of the chorus was of exceptional merit, the singing was about the best ever heard in the theatre and the dances were all well executed. The show was musical in every sense of the word.

TO ERECT LARGE CONCRETE BRIDGE

County Commissioners will have Reinforced Concrete Bridge Built to Replace Collapsed Structure at Aspers.

To replace the bridge over Possum Creek at Aspers, which collapsed on Monday, the County Commissioners will build a handsome re-enforced concrete granite structure about 98 feet in length.

This is in line with the resolution passed by the Commissioners several years ago when they decided to build nothing but re-enforced concrete bridges in this county. Two such structures have been erected and both, in addition to being very substantial in appearance, have proved satisfactory in every particular. The one is at Fairfield and the other over Swift Run on the road from Gettysburg to New Oxford.

It is planned by the Commissioners to have the new bridge at Aspers cross Possum Creek at a place where it will be exactly in line with the proposed new state highway between Gettysburg and Carlisle as provided for in the Sprout Roads Bill. Whether or not two arches will be required will not be known until architects' plans are submitted.

It has been generally reported that the old bridge which collapsed on Monday had been condemned. This is declared by Clerk to the Commissioners S. Miley Miller to be incorrect.
Mr. Miller showing the incorrectness of the rumor by calling attention to the fact that the bill would have been labeled unsafe if it had been condemned.

The old bridge was erected about forty years ago. Its collapse is explained by the jarring caused by a runaway team, which crossed over it at the time, having caused it to "unbuckle" and drop into the creek.
That the bridge was substantial is said to be proved by citing the passage of a heavy four horse team over it a few minutes before the collapse.

The debris from the structure is being rapidly cleared away.

versity of Pennsylvania, where he overheated stove pipe. Mr. and Mrs.

Pegano fought the fire for about fifteen minutes but when their neighbors arrived the flames were beyond control.
The chicken house was also burned.

N. Y. CAPITOL WRECKED BY FIRE

Blaze Causes $7,000,000 Damage to Building.

ONE MAN LOST HIS LIFE

Combustion Starting From Fused Electric Wire Sweeps Through Structure and Ruins Many Departments—Was Hard to Subdue.

Albany, N. Y., March 30.—The granite walls of the state capitol, majestic and white twenty-four hours ago, and holding the machinery of the state government, are blackened from the flames that have been kissing them for eight hours.

The entire western section of the capitol is almost completely destroyed, at a loss of at least $7,000,000, and half of the state departments are crippled and homeless.

Electricians say the fire was started by a fused electric push button becoming electrified.

Franklin B. Ware, the state architect, placed the loss officially at $5,000,000, but nobody would be surprised if it ultimately went a few millions more.

Samuel J. Abbott, aged seventy-seven years, a Civil War veteran, who was employed as a night watchman in the state library, is supposed to have perished in the flames. His body has not been found.

Guardsmen Patrol Building.
Capitol Hill is a dismal spot. A battalion of national guardsmen are doing sentry duty around the whole building with a vigilance that would befit a captured fort. This was the place where the legislators and the crowds had lingered until 1 o'clock in the morning for a possible outcome of the senatorship caucus. The whole legislature is farther out of the capitol than politicians could ever put it, and both houses will be doing business for some days in the municipal chambers of Albany's city hall, a block below the capitol.

As a result of one of the most disastrous fires that ever ate up state property, the $26,000,000 capitol, which took years to build, furnished such ready fuel for the flames that the fire burned eight hours before it was under control. With its origin somewhere in the rear of the assembly judiciary committee's room and assembly library on the third floor, the fire spread with alarming rapidity, wiping completely out of existence the entire state education department, with its state library of world-wide fame and of a value that cannot be estimated in dollars, and destroyed other state offices with an ease which baffled the firemen and gave Albany one of the worst frights it ever got.

A Spectacular Blaze.
Granite pillars were no barriers for the flames. They got a start in the assembly judiciary committee rooms and claimed the state library, with its hundreds of thousands of books and pretty wooden partitions of carved oak in one gulp. They swept over the entire third floor of the capitol at the western end, while the big plate glass windows crumbled and fell with crashes that tumbled the residents within ten blocks of the capitol out of bed, and then went merrily skyward 200 feet. Within a half hour after the fire started for fifty miles about was transformed into daylight. The heavens were illuminated with the kind of reflection Albany never saw before. The capitol building on the top of the hill, plain to the naked eye for at least fifty miles, was now the great beacon light, giving a display which was as spectacular as it was threatening.

Thought Whole Building Doomed.
State officials, the hundreds of male and female clerks employed in the building and members of the legislature were out and running to Capitol Hill from all directions. The first view gave credence to the belief felt for hours after that the whole capitol building was doomed to destruction. State office after state office went out of business. From the third floor the fire ate its way right and left and finally made for the senate and assembly chambers.

Firemen pluckily entered the burning building, which was full of smoke, to save the senate and assembly, even if the whole western section of the capitol went up in flames. The flames reached the assembly ceiling, and it would have gone up in a jiffy had it not been of paper mache. The streams from the building from the exterior went up to only the third floor, and the hardest part of the battle had to be done by the firemen in the building. One by one they succumbed to the smoke, only to be quickly revived in the open and hurry back to the sickening interior again.

The departments which were put absolutely out of business by the fire were the state library and state library school on the third and fourth floors of the capitol, the state court of claims, the legislative bill drafting department, the state superintendent of weights and measures, the examinations department of the regents on the fourth floor of the capitol, where the fire raged the fiercest, causing that particular cupola to topple over into the ruins. The senate library was saved from the flames, though deluged with water.

TWO-CENT FARE INVALID

Oklahoma Law Declared Confiscatory by U. S. Court.

St. Louis, Mo., March 30.—The two-cent passenger rate in Oklahoma was declared confiscatory and was held invalid by a decision of the United States circuit court of appeals here.

The unanimous opinion of the court restrains the members of the corporation commission of Oklahoma and the attorney general of that state from enforcing the provisions of the Oklahoma constitution reducing the maximum passenger fare to two cents a mile and reducing freight rates in interstate traffic.

The opinion, which was written by Presiding Judge Sanborn, declares that the evidence shows that the reductions do not allow a fair return on investment and declares that the provision in the constitution of Oklahoma giving the commission the power to fix rates is in conflict with the constitution of the United States.

TAFT PRAISES BIBLE AS ANGLO-SAXON TIE

Sends Greetings to Centenary Celebration in London.

Washington, March 30. — Felicitations on the Bible centenary ceremonies at London were expressed in a message sent through Ambassador Reid by President Taft, as follows:
"To the Ter-Centenary Celebration of the Publication of the King James Version, Royal Albert Hall, London, England:

"It affords me very great pleasure to present through Mr. Reid my congratulations to those who in the mother country are commemorating so signal and historic an event as the publication of the King James version of the English Bible. This book of books has not only reigned supreme in England for three centuries, but has bound together as nothing else could two great Anglo-Saxon nations, one in blood, in speech and in a common religious life. Our laws, our literature and our social life owe whatever excellence they possess largely to the influence of this, our chief classic, acknowledged as such equally on both sides of the sea.

"Americans must, therefore, with unfeigned satisfaction, join in thanksgiving to the God of the Bible who has thus bound together the Old and the New World by so precious a tie.

"I can speak, I am sure, for my fellow countrymen in congratulating you on so significant a commemoration."
WILLIAM H. TAFT."

GIANT WAVE KILLS SKIPPER

Hurled Him With Terrific Force Down Companionway.

Newport News, Va., March 30. — Hurled by a giant wave with terrific force down a companionway, Captain Christen Pedersen, master of the Danish steamer Dronning Olga, was instantly killed. The vessel arrived at Newport News with her flag at half mast.

The Olga ran into rough weather on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. On March 24 a heavy sea swept Captain Pedersen off his feet.

His right leg was amputated as the result of the accident.

6000 MISSIONARY WOMEN AT LUNCH

Climax of Celebration of 50 Years Work.

MERE MAN WAS BARRED

Only a Few Carefully Selected Males Were Allowed to Look on, and They Became So Hungry "Spreads" Were Sent Them.

New York, March 30.—Women ruled three of the city's largest hotels here. Nearly 6000 women sat down to a luncheon that marked the climax of this week's celebration of fifty years of woman's work in foreign missionary fields.

It was the largest gathering of women at luncheon—or any other meal, for that matter—ever held in New York. To have completed the picture it would have been necessary only to provide maids to replace the 600 waiters who bustled about among the flower-decked tables.

Mere man was allowed only to sniff the luncheon from afar. The few carefully selected male persons, who were allowed to sit in the boxes, looked so hungry that the compassion of the women was aroused and "spreads" were sent up stairs. The whole thing was a woman's affair, even to the speeches.

When the idea of holding this luncheon was conceived in connection with the jubilee, not a woman on the committee had an idea that it would attain such proportions. Mrs. Charles F. Hoffman said she would serve as chairman of the luncheon committee, thinking, like many others, that it would be a comparatively simple task. Mrs. Hoffman was a wiser, though by no means sadder, woman.

Although the 6000 women represented fifteen religious denominations—and as many different walks of life—there was no denominational grouping at the tables. In fact, there was no grouping of any kind. The mingling of interests was one of the significant features of the luncheon. At a given table of ten, for instance, there would be found a woman who had spent many years as a missionary in India, and at her side another whose missionary activity consisted of giving liberally to the cause.

Women who had served on church committees and home boards in aid of missionaries abroad sat beside those to whom their contributions had gone. They were not all New York women. In fact, fully half were from other cities, where, in many cases, the fiftieth jubilee had already been celebrated.

THEATRICAL PIRATES RAIDED

Are Charged With Selling Copyrighted Stage Productions.

Chicago, March 30.—Federal secret service men raided the offices of the Chicago Manuscript company, in La Salle street, charging the concern with pirating copyrighted theatrical productions.

Eight girl stenographers were subpoenaed, each with the manuscript on which they were working.

Warrants were issued for Alexander Beyer, who is said to be the owner of the company, and for his wife, Mrs. Anna Beyer.

The raid followed complaint by Attorney Lignon Johnson, of New York, counsel for the National Association of Theatrical Producers, who charges that the company would send its stenographers to plays, have them take down the dialogue in short hand, while another noted the stage directions, and that copies of this manuscript would be sold far below the royalty price.

PROBE NEW YORK FIRE

Twenty Charred Bodies of Victims Still Remain Unidentified.

New York, March 30.—The investigation into last Saturday's fire disaster, in which 143 persons lost their lives, was continued.

Twenty charred bodies still are unidentified. On Saturday these bodies or such of them as relatives and friends have by that time been unable to identify, will be buried in Mount Sinai cemetery.

Attention was largely centered in that phase of the investigation taken in charge by District Attorney Whitman in an effort to fix responsibility for the catastrophe. Mr. Whitman summoned many witnesses to his office to get their testimony in shape for presentation to the grand jury. Fire Marshal Beers continued the examination of witnesses in his investigation.

Mrs. Emerson says that she and Captain Emerson have not lived together as husband and wife since October, 1904, when the alleged abandonment is said to have begun.

DIDN'T BACK LORIMER

Taft's Friends Deny He Hoped For His Election.

Washington, March 30.—Friends of President Taft took steps promptly to deny that he had ever expressed the hope that William Lorimer would be elected to the United States senate from Illinois.

According to the testimony of Edward Hines, a Chicago lumber merchant, who appeared before the investigating committee of the Illinois legislature, Senator Aldrich came to him last May with the declaration that the president was anxious to see Lorimer elected.

According to friends of the president, there is no truth in the statement of Hines. The president, his friends said, never expressed a preference for the election of Lorimer. He was anxious, it was said, that the deadlock in the Illinois legislature be broken, but he never went so far as to name any particular person whom he wished to see chosen.

FOUND VAGRANT BARK

Vessel Laden With Nitrate Deserted by Crew In Bay of Biscay.

London, March 30.—The captain of the steamer Branksome Hall reports that the four-masted steel bark Buteshire, laden with nitrate, is roaming with sails set, but crewless, in the Bay of Biscay.

The Branksome Hall bore down on the vagrant Monday and found her deserted and a lifeboat gone. The bark appeared to be seaworthy and in good shape, and her lamps were still burning, indicating that she had not been long abandoned. A gale prevented an attempt to board her.

ALDRICH CURRENCY PLAN SUITS BANKERS

Suggest a Few Changes in the Phraseology.

Washington, March 30.—After a conference of two days with the currency commission of the American Bankers' association the monetary commission adjourned to meet at the call of Chairman Aldrich.

The conference has been devoted to a general analysis of the Aldrich currency bill. In the main the provisions of the plan outlined by Mr. Aldrich have been found to be acceptable to the bankers, but they have suggested changes in phraseology in other portions of the measure, and considerable attention has been given to a few of the features of the bill.

The plans of the commission embrace an active campaign for the summer with the view of having the measure completed by the beginning of the first regular session of the Sixty-second congress on the first Monday of next December. To this end the country will be canvassed and much literature will be distributed.

Senator Aldrich and other members of the commission probably will visit many of the large cities during the spring, summer and fall.

3 BLACK HANDERS TAKEN

Kansas City Police Accuse Them of Two Murders.

Kansas City, Mo., March 30.—In a little room in a house in the Italian section detectives arrested Lorenzo Messina, Nick Behrinnado and Sam Genno in connection with the assassination of Joseph Raimo, an Italian policeman.

The police declare they are members of the organized "Black Hand," which was also responsible for the murder of Mrs. Pauline Pizano, an Italian woman, who was mysteriously slain on Dec. 14 last.

In the room were three shotguns, which were like those found near the dead policeman. Mrs. Pizano was killed with the same kind of weapon.

NEW SCHEME TO OUST LORIMER

Democrats and Insurgents to Force Another Probe.

WILL REOPEN WHOLE FIGHT

It is Said New Evidence May Drag In the Names of Leading Senators and Even the President Himself.

Washington, March 30.—When the senate of the United States, a short time before the close of the last session, voted to allow William Lorimer to retain his seat, it did not speak the final word on this important question.

That a new investigation of the Lorimer case will be started in the senate soon after the special session begins on April 4 is not at all unlikely. It was declared in responsible quarters that it is probable the whole fight against the seating of Lorimer will be reopened.

The plan of the senators who believe Lorimer is not entitled to his seat is to introduce a new resolution as soon as the extra session opens. It will be the same as the Beveridge resolution of last session—to the effect that Lorimer was not legally elected by the legislature of Illinois.

The introduction of this resolution, it is expected, will compel the senate to direct the privileges and elections committee to probe once more into the facts.

The reasons for the proposed new investigation are found in part in the startling testimony of Edward Hines, at Springfield, Ill., before a committee of the state senate, in which he declared that Senators Aldrich and Penrose and President Taft were anxious to have Lorimer elected. It is expected that other startling revelations will follow on the Hines testimony.

But, more than this, important evidence which was not brought to light at the last session of congress is said to be in the hands of certain of the insurgent senators, showing what actually happened in the bribery of members of the legislature at Springfield.

Important New Witness.

It is even asserted that within a short time there will be brought to light a witness who was not brought into the case in the last session, because it was known he had his grip packed ready to go to Canada the moment he should learn he was to be drawn into the case.

Senators who are bent on reopening the Lorimer case declare it is not "res adjudicata" in any sense, because of the vote last session, and that the senate, despite that vote, is free to go into the case once more as if it never before had been investigated. They point out that the senate is the sole judge of the qualifications and election of its members, and can do what it pleases respecting a second inquiry into the case.

It is not impossible that a new Lorimer investigation, dragging in the names of leading senators—touching even the president, with great Republican national politics involved—will become the overshadowing issue of the extra session in the senate.

In view of the turn the matter has taken by reason of the Hines testimony it is believed most of the Democratic senators will be keen for another probing of the case.

Edward Hines, who is from Chicago, and is known in Washington as a lobbyist for great lumber interests—a man who was here frequently in the tariff special session in the interest of the lumber men, and who was in Washington last winter during the heat of the fight against Lorimer for the purpose of preventing the latter being thrown out of the senate, has declared before the state senate committee at Springfield that President Taft and Senators Aldrich and Penrose urged Lorimer's election in order to obtain a vote for the Payne tariff bill.

AVIATOR'S FAMILY NEAR DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

Hamilton's Car Was Wrecked by Electric Train.

New Britain, Conn., March 30.—The luck that has carried Charles K. Hamilton, the daring little aviator, through many dangerous situations in his adventurous career, stayed with him when he figured in a wreck between his new high powered roadster and an electric train three miles from this city.

Hamilton, his wife and mother had a most wonderful escape from death in a collision with the train, which tore off both wheels on one side of the car and left it a complete wreck on top of a gateman's shanty, which was overturned when the automobile struck it.

As Hamilton approached the dangerous crossing on the electric road he slowed down. Not seeing any train approaching or the gateman, who was on the opposite side of the road, he sped up his car to shoot across the tracks. At the same moment one of the fast electric trains swung around the sharp curve, a short distance below the crossing.

Hamilton turned his car sharply and proceeded parallel with the train for a short distance. The car became tightly wedged between the gateman's shanty and the train and the shanty was upset. The electric train tore off the two wheels of the automobile and damaged the body of the car considerably. None of Hamilton's party was injured or even thrown out of the car, which was reduced to junk.

THE RIVALS.

Each Thought Himself a Shade Handsomer Than the Other.

"Did you boys ever hear that back in the eighties I was regarded as one of the homeliest men in Kentucky?" inquired Senator Bradley of a number of newspaper men. "It's a fact, and I'll tell you a story to illustrate it."

"Under the laws of Kentucky the governor has the power of pardon even before grand jury proceedings or trial. During my first term as governor my attorney general was John K. Hendrick. Some folks said Hendrick was the homeliest man in Kentucky; others said I was. In those days I wore a beard, as did Hendrick. John always maintained that he was a better looking man than I, and I always disputed his argument."

"One day Hendrick walked into my office."

"I want a pardon, governor," he announced.

"All right, Hendrick," I said. "But what have you done?"

"I just shot a man down street," said Hendrick calmly.

"What for?" I demanded.

"He said I looked like you," answered Hendrick, "and I could not stand for that."

"You shall have the pardon at once," I announced. "If you hadn't shot the cuss I would have done so on sight."

Going or Coming.

A train was reported forty minutes late, and after the time had elapsed a would be passenger inquired:

"How late is that train?"

"Oh, about an hour late."

The hour passed and the query was repeated.

"Well, they'll be about an hour and twenty minutes late here."

Patience reigned until the query was justly renewed and the railroad man replied:

"Well, sir, I think that train will be near two hours late."

Whereupon the passenger said:

"Say, mister, will you kindly tell me which way that train is going?"—Portland Oregonian.

The "Temporary" Wife.

Mrs. Leslie Milne, who writes "Shans at Home," tells an amusing story of a Hindu dispenser connected with an American mission who during the absence of the missionary took a Shan wife in addition to his Hindu wife, who was in Calcutta. When the missionary returned he was very indignant—naturally disapproving of polygamy—and the dispenser came to Mrs. Leslie's house to ask her to intercede for him. "What have I done?" he said. "I may by my custom have many more wives than one, so I said to the sahib, 'Sir, be not angry; it was only a temporary measure,' but the more I thought to please him by telling him that it was only temporary the more angry he became."

TWO SICKLY CHILDREN

Made Well by Vinol—Letters From Grateful Mothers.

New Haven, Conn.—"My little girl ever since her birth was frail and sickly and nothing seemed to do her any good, until we tried your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. As soon as she commenced to take it, I noticed an improvement in her health and appearance. She has now taken three bottles of Vinol and from the good it has done her I can say it will do all you claim for it in building up and strengthening frail and delicate children." (Name furnished on request).

Another mother of Chicago, Ill., writes: "My little girl was thin, run down, pale and without any appetite. Vinol gave her a good appetite, she has rosy cheeks and has gained in flesh and strength."

"I cannot say too much in praise of Vinol for delicate, ailing children."

We ask every mother of a frail, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it does not do all we claim. People's Drug Store, C. Wm. Beales, proprietor, Gettysburg, Pa.

Pigs and chickens seem to be quite subject to tubercular trouble and sheep and horses, on the contrary, remarkably immune to it.

The world's 1910 wheat crop aggregated 3,967,000,000 bushels and was harvested from 254,000,000 acres. This was an average yield of 13.2 bushels per acre.

Many an unprofitable hen might be induced to turn over a new leaf were she given a ration containing less corn and more protein and made to scratch for all the grain fed. Before putting these idlers into a potpie it might be well to give them such a test.

By JOHN D. BILLINGS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

My family, the Moffetts, during the Revolutionary war were divided on the issue, some of them being Tories, some ardent patriots. The first Moffett who came to this country was British to the core. He arrived when he was thirty years old and was sixty when independence was declared. One would think he had had ample time to become Americanized, but nothing can departiate an Englishman.

Not long ago, becoming interested in the family genealogy, I got into correspondence with a cousin of mine who lived in the identical house built and occupied by Cuthbert Moffett, the old curmudgeon Tory. I was invited to visit my cousin and inspect the home-stead and certain heirlooms it contained. I accepted the invitation and found him quite ready to give me all the information he possessed about the family history. He said that our progenitor had been so wrought upon by King George's failure to establish his authority that it killed him.

"There," said my cousin when he showed me to my room, pointing to a painting hanging on the wall, "is a portrait of the second Moffett, James, our grandfather. It was painted when he was sixty-eight years old, or about the age at which his father, Cuthbert Moffett, died."

The face was a model of kindness, the reverse of what his father's must have been.

After dining and passing an agreeable evening with my cousin and his family I went upstairs to bed. He had been telling me legends of the family, and my mind was quite full of them. However, I had been traveling all day and was tired. Getting out of my clothes as soon as possible, I turned off the light and jumped into bed.

There are certain nights when there is a deadness in the air that prevents persons from sleeping. I had struck one of these nights. An hour after going to bed I awoke, and after being awake another hour concluded to light the gas—it had been put in with much difficulty some years before—and read a novel I had brought with me. I read for some time and, becoming a bit sleepy or tired of my book, I laid it down on the bed beside me. Then I found myself looking straight at the picture of James Moffett. The gas jet shone full upon it.

Impressed as I had been with the stories my cousin had told me about the disagreeable makeup of Cuthbert and the genial disposition of James Moffett, the moment my eyes fell on the portrait it struck me that the natures of these two men were struggling with each other in it. If ever there was a mingling of a diabolical with a noble expression it was there. There seemed to be two pictures in one—two men of the same age, the one a devil, the other a saint. Their features were so much alike that they could scarcely be told apart.

I moved aside, when, behold, I saw only the benevolent features of James Moffett. I moved as far to the opposite side, and there on the same canvas was the devilish face of Cuthbert. I resumed my original position and there saw again the strange mingling of the two.

Now, I am not a superstitious man, but one must admit that after listening to the stories I had heard of these two men, my own progenitors, looking upon such a sight was not conducive to quiet nerves. I don't say that I was impressed with the probability of there being anything supernatural about the portrait, but I didn't know. A man is much more liable to give way to superstition at 2 o'clock in the morning, alone, than in the light of day with other persons about him.

I wondered if the father and son had not quarreled in life and the son had unwillingly been implicated in the father's death. And was not this quarrel supernaturally perpetuated in the picture?

Nonsense! I would turn out the light and go to sleep.

I did the first at once; the second I could not do till daylight came and the picture lost its duplex condition.

At breakfast I did not propose to give away my midnight trepidation to my cousin.

"Sleep well?" he asked. "I didn't like to lie about it, so I admitted that I was awake. "See anything unusual in the room?" "I know what you're driving at. There's something strange about that portrait of our grandfather."

He smiled. "I wondered if you would be looking at it when your gas-light struck it. I hope it didn't disturb you."

CLEARING LOGGED OFF LANDS

Char Pit Method Recommended Highly by Washington Professor.

That logged off lands can be cleared of stumps, removing roots to a depth below the reach of a plow, and at a cost of less than 50 cents a stump has been demonstrated by the experiments of Professor H. W. Sparks of the state college at Pullman, Wash.

Professor Sparks' successful experiments have been with the char pit method. Once understood this method is the most simple and inexpensive that can be imagined. A little fire, a little clayey earth and a little watchfulness are the essentials in the process by the combination of which the most hopeless looking stumpy acreage can be prepared for the plow in the course of two weeks.

The char pit method is simply an adaptation of the old and well known method of making charcoal by burning in closed pits. It depends for its efficiency on concentration of heat. A ring of loose wood, bark, etc., is first laid all the way round the stump and as close to it as possible, and this is then covered to a depth of about six inches with earth, leaving a small opening in the direction from which the wind is blowing. The wood is then lighted at this point and left for about half an hour, until the fire is well started, when this hole is then covered up like the rest. As the fire burns back into the stump the blanket of earth must be kept right up to the stump so that the fire never has an opportunity to break out. The top of the stump doesn't burn, but is simply cut off cleanly at a point about level with the top of the earthen blanket.

When the top has been cut off by the fire and rolls off the whole crown of the stump should be covered with earth and can then be left without much further attention until the roots have been burned out. This is sometimes done to a depth of fifteen feet or more.

The length of time required to destroy the stump depends on what kind of wood it is and whether green, dry or rotten. The most stubborn stumps will disappear in two weeks at the most, while many are done away with in three or four days. The record of Professor Sparks' experiment shows an average cost of between 40 and 50 cents a stump. In some of these he has used fuel oil and coal tar.

The experiments which have so far been successful have been with clay soil. This, baked and hardened by the fire, conserves the highest degree of heat. Sandy or stony soil sifts in and puts out the fire or permits it to spread. Professor Sparks is now working out certain theories by which he expects to perfect a similar method adapted to other soils than clay.

The farmer gets value received from seed sown. He who drops good seed into the ground will have an excellent crop of painted buildings, clean ditches, good fences, good live stock, profits and good humor. He who feeds the soil with poor seed will get and regret a splendid crop of weeds, broken gates, leaky roofs, poor machinery, scrub animals and back taxes.—Ohio Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

A Good Word For Buckwheat.

No crop will bring in better returns in the northern states for the time it occupies the ground than buckwheat. It is put in after all other crops have been planted and are growing. It is the best grain to raise to subdue a patch of troublesome weeds and to starve out worms in the soil. It also comes handy to sow on vacant pieces of ground which have been left because too late to be sown to some other crop. It is also a valuable crop to plow under to enrich the soil and give humus.

D. J. RIELE,

Chambersburg Street.

England imported 2,201,296,440 eggs in 1910, which cost $35,459,254, or an average of 19.2 cents per dozen. It would be worth knowing what these eggs cost the consumer when served on his table.

In any section of the country where land will produce two crops of clover or three or four cuttings of alfalfa one need not be afraid of paying from $100 to $200 per acre for land, as the growing of these legumes will give a generous interest return on the investment price.

In a recent institute which the writer attended the question was raised by one farmer present whether if the Babcock test and weighing of the milk yield of cows were generally introduced there would not be an overproduction of butter. There seems to be very little likelihood of it, for if the test were universally applied close to a third of all the cows in the country would be put out of commission—the star boarders that are making 130 pounds of butter or less and are kept at a loss.
